FRIENDS HONOR LIFE OF LATE DR. M'ALESTER

200 Citizens of Boone County
Hold Meeting in Circuit
Court Room to Pay Tribute.

RESOLUTIONS ARE READ

Message of Respect Calls Physician Leading Spirit in County—Friend of Humanity.

Two hundred friends of the late Dr. A. W. McAlester met in the Circuit Court room yesterday afternoon and paid tribute to his memory. Gray-haired men and women, life-long citizens of Boone County, sat in silence and listened to the eulogies bestowed upon their neighbor and counselor.

A committee composed of E. W. Stephens, S. C. Hunt, Dr. F. G. Nifong, Thad Hickman and Dr. J. E. Thornton submitted the following resolutions of respect, which were adopted:

"Humanity has lost a friend, the profession of medicine a shining light, the state of Missouri a distinguished and valuable citizen in the passing of Dr. Andrew Walker McAlester, who for over eighty years was a resident of this city and county, and who since early manhood has been a foremost and progressive figure in its history.

"We, his neighbors and friends, express our high regard and admiration for the achievements of his career, our lifelong confidence in him as a citizen, a physician and a friend, and the deep bereavement and loss this community has sustained in his death. Thousands of homes which he so much blessed deplore his departure.

"We commend the ambition, the vision, the sacrifices, the philanthropy, the unselfishness, the high ideals, and the final success and justly earned honors which came to him; as an object lesson, worthy the aspiration and imitation of the rising generation. He displayed to a signal degree the possibilities of an ardent and honest spirit in this community.

"We extend to his bereaved relatives our heartfelt sympathies and ask that this expression of our sorrow be transmitted to the public for publication."

E. W. Stephens told of a request by Doctor McAlester that he pay him a tribute at his death.

"Because of this," said Mr. Stephens, "it is a great pleasure for me today to express to you my great confidence, my great love and my great admiration for Doctor McAlester. I knew him from my earliest childhood before he was in the University. He was a man of great vision, a man of service, and entered a profession the purpose of which is to help humanity. He was always in the front rank of his profession, not only in this county but in the state and Nation. He had a desire to serve his fellowman and there is probably not a family in this county which has not received the benefits of his skill. Today, we honor his name, his character and his achievements. He not only was a surgeon but he was a teacher. Doctor McAlester was the pioneer of medical instruction in this state."

Dr. F. G. Nifong said he had been personally associated with Doctor McAlester for the last seventeen years and had received invaluable training as his pupil. "I have sat at his feet," said Doctor Nifong, "and listened to his wise teachings. What an inspiration he has been, not only as a physician but as a Christian gentleman! He was a doctor of the old school. He was not only minister and servant but counselor as well. He was ever ready to minister under all kinds of conditions. He believed in his fellowman; he believed in God, and he served all."

During the frequent pauses of the speakers, occasional sobs broke the religious silence and tears trickled down the cheeks of the young as well as the old. It was a meeting of "home-folks," to respect and revere one of their own neighbors. "Andy" McAlester, one of the speakers called him.

Short speeches of tribute were made by Ben M. Anderson, J. Kelly Wright, Pierre S. Quinn, Dr. J. B. Cole, W. L. Nelson and Dr. J. W. Conaway.

H. P. ROBBINS, EDITOR, SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

Qualifications for Journalists and Essentials in Newspaper Production Are Brought Out.

ACCURACY IS KEYNOTE

The Unusual Adds News Interest—Curiosity and Vanity
Keep Paper Running,
He Says.

Henry P. Robbins, editor of the St. Louis Times, spoke to the students of the School of Journalism at 9 o'clock this morning in the auditorium of Jay H. Hoff Hall on some of the essential points in newspaper production and the needs and qualifications of students entering this field.

It is the unusual or abnormal thing which is of news interest and should appear in the paper, according to Mr. Robbins. Curiosity and vanity are two things which keep the papers running. For instance, he said, in one town in which he ran a paper there were fifty-seven murders in one month and so the paper began to dismiss them with only a few lines.

"To get there as soon as possible with the fewest words," is the proper style to adopt, Mr. Robbins said. "If you do not put over the main idea in the first of the story it is going to be lost."

Mr. Robbins sounded a warning to beware of statistics as most of them are only estimates. It is better, he said, to state a matter concretely without figures than to use them with possibility of their being inaccurate. Accuracy, he insisted, cannot be over-emphasized and it is better to go over and over the story with the man from whom it is being secured than to take any chance of having a mistake.

In a paper putting out eight editions a day, absolute system in every department is necessary. "There is a deadline after which no story can be accepted," he said, "and sometimes the paper goes to press three minutes after the last headline score is reported. After each edition is printed it is then up to the circulation department to get it on the street."

"This country is all right," Mr. Robbins concluded, "but it sometimes needs straightening up, and the newspaper must help do it."

"BUDDIES" LIVE AGAIN THE NOV. 11 OF 4 YEARS AGO

Service Men Hold Banquet in True
War-Time Spirit on Armistice Day.

Hidden away in an underground smoke-choked nook on Cherry street, the former service men of Columbia revived the vivid November 11 of four years ago, last Saturday night. There were no formal speeches—no formalities—no lengthy injunctions to wipe out the demon war who has plied his cruel trade long enough. Idealists there might have been there. Pacifists in a less degree were not missing, perhaps, but their idealism and their pacifism was not in evidence.

This was a meeting of fighting men, to whom their flag was not a bore save in the days when the call to battle was sounded. Buddies in the bell-bottoms and flat hats of the battleworn days were mingled with the bluffs of the regulars. Privateers borrowed "snipes" from their erstwhile "old man," the colonel. It was their celebration of Armistice Day.

Called to order at 7:30, before the command "Seats!" was given, each man was asked to turn and shake hands with the man on either side. Clow was then sounded and a vigorous attack was begun upon the oncoming ranks of oyster stew, chicken a la king, English peas, mashed potatoes, coffee and pie. The continuity of the courses was frequently broken by the chanting of the bar-room hallads, the chants being rendered in true barracks style, led by the Gyrene quartet composed of "San Domingo" Dillingham, "Pinky" Simons, "Moss" Sergeant, Jaeger and "Bevo" Carter.

War-time stories and lunkhouse jokes were handled back and forth from table to table. All entertainers were given the "razz" in the whole-hearted fashion of the service men and accepted it in the same style.

No speakers were allowed to take the floor unless called upon by the crowd. "Acetyre" Simplic, of the Thirty-fifth was given an ovation after his remarks on the need for former service men to back the R. O. T. C., the institution for the training of the officers of the future. "Big Jack" Williams, former state commander of the American Legion, outlined his ideas of the best way to promote the schemes in which the former service men were vitally interested—the abolition of department and branch of the service and uniting as buddies to work for a common cause. Col. William E. Persons, of the University R. O. T. C., expressed his pleasure at the attitude of the former service men toward his organization and stressed the need of a more serious consideration of our national defenses. John W. Teed, commander of the D. A. V., outlined the work of his organization and the efforts of the Veterans' Council, of which he is chairman, to correlate the efforts of the various veterans' organizations in Columbia. Colonel Persons, upon request of the banqueters introduced the members of his staff who were present each responding with a brief talk.

A vacant chair at the table with complete dinner service was significant of the boys who were unable to attend and who paid the supreme price. Upon the suggestion of Sergeant J. L. Karchner, U. S. M. C., of St. Louis, the gathering stood at attention facing the east, out of respect to their departed comrades.

The Armistice Day banquet was given under the direction of the U. S. Marine Corps Club of Columbia. I. W. Brown, "skipper" of the local organization, acted as master of ceremonies.

CORN YIELD IS FAIR IN BOONE

26 Bushels to Acre—State Fruit
Crop Is Good But Corn
Under Average.

Corn gathering in Boone County indicates an average yield of 26 bushels to the acre, according to the federal-state crop report of Jewell Mayes and E. A. Logan. The average yield for Missouri is 29 bushels, according to the report, which indicates that 75 per cent of the Boone County crop is merchantable, that 8 per cent of last year's crop remains on the farms and that the average price of new corn in the county is 63 cents a bushel.

The Boone County yield is above that of most of the surrounding counties of Central Missouri. Cole County has a 32-bushel yield, Howard 38 bushels and Monticue 27, however.

The disposal of corn in Boone County is indicated as follows: Grain, 82 per cent; hogged off, 12 per cent; cut for ensilage, 5 per cent. The acreage for fodder was 28 per cent. The yield of sorghum cane sirup per acre was 68 gallons.
